

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am currently a student studying 3D Digital Design and Animation at the University of Greenwich, and am very interested in taking part in the Young Design Programme. I feel that taking part within this scheme is a fantastic chance to improve my skills as a designer, and a good chance to collaborate with designers and departments currently within in the industry.

I am a good team worker, as I have recently finished a project to make an interactive video game, where I was the Project manager, and I had to oversee every part of the production of the interactive project, from design, to game play and sound, organise meetings with the group, set deadlines etc. I think this will be useful to me if I do get accepted to take part on the Young Designer Programme.

Last year I also took part in a project organised by my 3D tutor, who gave us work experience while we were waiting for the next academic year to start, we were able to take part in some industry work, working on a music video for the Japanese band Exile, where I was asked to build props to go into this scene.

Thank you for the opportunity to take part in this programme, and I hope to hear from you soon.

Yours Sincerely,

Anthony Peacock
